

amiando now in Spanish

amiando AG extends its service to the Spanish market.

Munich, 17.03. 2008. The internet based event organisation platform amiando.de is now also offering its service in Spanish and so appealing to event hosts in Spain as well as in Latin America.

After the platform was made available to users in French and English in the course of its internationalisation process, amiando AG has now taken a further step towards strengthening its position as the leading provider of do-it-yourself ticketing and online event organisation by making its service available in Spanish. As the English version of the service under amiando.com is already actively used by many users in the Spanish speaking world, amiando AG is specifically catering to the demand from users in Spain and Latin America with the launch of the Spanish version.

„We are looking forward to being able to make the amiando platform available to even more people and to easing the organization of events worldwide with our platform. “says Markus Eichinger, director of international expansion at amiando AG.

In conjunction with the basic ticketing model, which enables payments to be made with the online payment system PayPal, it is now also possible for users from Spanish speaking countries to easily organise events on the internet, invite friends and use the innovative online prepayment system. This means users can quickly create a ticket shop and set up preferred payment options and this now in yet another worldwide language.

amiando AG makes it easier for event hosts to organise both small and medium-sized events. With amiando.com, the first online service of its kind in Europe, amiando AG makes invitation management and community building possible for all kinds of events.
